

Images and text held under a Folger Shakespeare Library copyright are available for use under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 4.0 International License. A human-readable summary of the terms of this license are at <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-sa/4.0/>; the full legal text is at <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-sa/4.0/legalcode>.

This allows you to use our content without additional permission, provided that you follow the terms of that license, including that:

1. you cite the Folger Shakespeare Library as the source, and
2. you license anything you create using the content under the same or equivalent license. The Folger sometimes uses content that does not belong to it, with permission of the content's owners. Such content is not included in the Creative Commons license. For content copyrighted by an entity other than the Folger, please contact the copyright holder for permission information.

To request permission to publish images owned by the Folger beyond the scope of the Creative Commons license, please fill out the application form. See our list of publication fees for information about our fee structure. The Folger waives the application process and permission fees for non-commercial publication by registered non-profits, including university presses, regardless of the license used. We request that you use the attribution: "By permission of the Folger Shakespeare Library."

To request permission to publish text owned by the Folger beyond the scope of the Creative Commons license, please contact us at webmaster@folger.edu.

Questions and application forms may be addressed to:

Photography and Digital Imaging
Folger Shakespeare Library
201 East Capitol Street, SE
Washington, DC 20003-1004

photo@folger.edu

fax: (202) 608-1715

phone: (202) 675-0335

Revised: December 11, 2017